The white Asparagus of Bassano DOP has ancient and legendary origins dated back in the period between 1200 and 1500. The most ancient legend recount that Saint Anthony from Padua, a friar with Portuguese origins that has lived some years in Africa, really appreciates the asparagus and had spread the knowledge of this cultivation in the territory of Bassano del Grappa where he was staying to tame the tyrant Ezzelino from Romano. Another reason why the asparagus is related to this saint is because the harvest season normally ends the 13th of July, day of his anniversary, when he died in Padua the 13th of July 1231. The first documents that attested the presence of crops of asparagus in this territory are dated back to the period of the Venetian Republic. Other documents tells that the asparagus produced in Bassano were particularly appreciated by council fathers, returning from the Council of Trento.
